The Gift of Life (1985) Screening

This documentary took a year to prepare and charts the progress of a man from Reading, Pa., and two youngsters at Children's Hospital in Washington, D.C. The man, Al Lilly, will die without a liver transplant and the families of the children anxiously await kidney donors. This examination of the organ transplant process emphasizes the people who are involved – recipients, donors, family members, and doctors. Q&A with Perry Wolff, executive producer & writer.
